HISTORIANS ADDRESSED BY A. W. LOCHEAD

Speaker Was Member at Close of Last Century.

SPECIAL MEETING.

"Early Syrian Church and the Nestorian Monument."

Mr. A. W. Lockhead addressed a special meeting of the McGill Historical Club in the reading room of Strathcona Hall yesterday evening. Mr. Lockhead was a member of the McGill Historical Club during his undergraduate days at this University. He graduated with the class of '01, and has spent most of the intervening years in research and missionary work in and about the old cultural capital of China.

The meeting was called to order at eight-thirty and after the normal business of the society had been disposed of as speedily as possible, the President introduced Mr. Lockhead to the club as an exception to the general rule,—a member of the Historical Club who had continued to take an intense and practical interest in history and historical scholarship in after life.

The subject of Mr. Lockhead's paper, "The Syrian Church in China and the Nestorian monument," was treated in a most interesting fashion by the speaker. After his excommunication and banishment by the Council of Edessa the Eretodox bishop, Nestorius, accompanied by his partisans set up a branch of the Christian Church in the East at a time when the Tang dynasty looked with favour upon scholars, whatever their creed or doctrine. The Nestorian Church flourished for a while, but towards the end of the eighth century A.D. they were subjected to violent persecutions in common with the adherents of Dowhism and Buddhism. The first outbreak of intolerance occurred just about three years after the erection of a large monumental stone by the spiritual descendants of the early followers of the bishop Nestorius. The persecution continued. (Continued on Page Two)

R.V.C. DEBATE WON BY SOPHOMORES

Bat Flies in And Illustrates Discussion.

The advantages and disadvantages of residence at College as compared with residence at home, formed the subject of a keenly contested debate at the R.V.C. yesterday. The Sophomores, who maintained that college residence was more profitable than living at home, gained the day over the freshmen.

The first speaker of the Affirmative, Miss Massy-Bailey, brought out her points in a most convincing manner, basing her opinion on physical advantages and opportunities for study to be found in residence. She laid great stress on the calm and the atmosphere of quiet which pervades the place, and that resident tutors were of great help to the students. The regular routine, she asserted, encouraged punctuality.

The second speaker, Miss Walsh, of the first year, spoke briefly, dwelling largely on family life, and the benefits which one derived from living at home. The next speaker, Miss Cameron, took up the social side of residential life, and the general development which one gained from it.

The last speaker, Miss Desbarats, of the Negative, spoke with considerable force, and to the point about the study, health, future and the so-called "esprit de famille" which one received at home. As she was refuting the arguments of her honourable opponent about "the calm and solitude" to be found in the R.V.C., one of the very largest bats extant, entered the common room and entirely disproved that assertion of the affirmative for all time. The Hon. President was the first to leave the scene of action, but was rapidly followed by a goodly portion of the audience. The sterner spirits, under the leadership of Mr. Villard, and M. de Rouse, not unassisted by our doubtless Hall porter, attacked the bat "en force." Alas! their efforts were unsuccessful, and the "Societe" was obliged to adjourn to the faculty room for the conclusion of the debate.

The debate finished, they returned again to the Common Room for tea, now that the deadly bat had flown hence into the black darkness of the approaching night. M. de Rouse then spoke on behalf of the judges, and awarded the laurels to the Affirmative, though, on the whole, the first (Continued on Page 3.)

"DAILY" STAFF TO HEAR EDITOR

E. J. Archibald, of Montreal Star, to Speak To-night.

The members of the "Daily" staff will hear an informal address in the Union to-night, by Mr. E. J. Archibald, editor of the Montreal Star. Mr. Archibald, who last year delivered a series of very popular lectures on Journalism, as an extension course in the Faculty of Arts, will deal with some of the phases of newspaper work, in particular journalistic ethics, and methods of constructing news articles for presentation to the public.

The speaker is extremely well qualified to treat his subject in a scholarly and interesting manner. His newspaper experience, both in Montreal and Toronto, has been long and extensive, and he has made a special study of the subjects on which he will speak. His selection as extension lecturer last year, is in itself evidence of the high esteem in which he is held as an authority on journalism.

College newspaper work usually suffers from lack of the proper guidance and instruction of reporters by men who are old and experienced in the game, and occasional talks by such able veterans as to-night's speaker will do much towards giving the staff of the "Daily" a better knowledge of how the professional newspaperman does his work. Appreciation of this fact has led to arrangements for holding several other meetings during the session at which similar addresses will be delivered.

After the lecture refreshments will be served, and the evening will take the shape of an informal gathering, at which all members of the staff will have the opportunity of becoming better acquainted.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

The following was clipped from a San Francisco newspaper, which was quoting from the New York Evening Post, under the heading: "Canada's Greatest University."

McGill University, which celebrated its centenary last month (October), began as a College for Montreal, but long since became an institution for the whole Dominion. The brilliant history of McGill's medical school is especially well known. It began its work in 1823; it was a sturdy institution of high standards when such institutions were very rare anywhere in the world; and it graduated in William Osler, of the class of 1872, a man of profound influence on American and British medical education. It is not forgotten that the present British Ambassador in Washington was once Professor of Anatomy at McGill.—New York Evening Post.

Are knot holes holes, or are they not holes?

NEWS BOARD.

A meeting of the News Board is called for this evening at 7.30 p.m., a half-hour in advance of the Staff Lecture by Mr. Archibald. A complete attendance is essential.

DEBATE WILL BE HELD AT LIT. TONIGHT

Preparation for Intercollegiate Debates.

AT UNION.

System of Elections in France and U. S. Will be Discussed.

At tonight's meeting of the literary Society at the Union, a debate will be presented on a topic of considerable interest to most undergraduates at this time. The subject is: "Resolved that the party system of government as in force in the United States is more representative of the electorate than the group system in force in France." The question under discussion will offer an excellent opportunity for the students to gain a more intimate knowledge of this phase of the constitutions of the two greatest republics.

The affirmative will be taken up by J. F. Callahan and J. Long of the Faculty of Law. Mr. Callahan, hails from below the border, and has the advantage of a close observation of the American system of election. John Long, President of the Law Undergraduates Society has done some detailed research work on the subject, and is well prepared to uphold his end of the discussion. On the negative side there are H. O'Hagan, of Arts, and Senecal of Law. There is no doubt as to O'Hagan's ability to carry his side of the debate with a sound exposition of the subject. He will be ably supported by Senecal.

The approaching Dominion elections, in which McGill men will probably play a prominent part, have stimulated a great deal of interest in topics such as the one under discussion to-night, and an unusually large audience is looked for at the second debate of the season. There is a further importance attached to tonight's debate in that it will be the last of the trials for the debating team, which is to compete against the representatives from Varsity and Queens later on in the season.

DR. ROSE SPOKE TO WESLEYANS

Meeting Held Under Auspices of the Literary Department.

In recognition of Canadian Authors' week, a meeting under the auspices of the Literary Department was held in Wesleyan College last night. Rev. Dr. Gifford presided, and the meeting was largely attended. Every item of the programme was purely Canadian. Mr. E. Moulton sang "In Flanders Fields," and Mr. Harold White, who played the accompaniments, was the first to type this immortal song. Mr. White was Col. McCrae's private secretary.

Dr. Gifford introduced Dr. Rose, the speaker of the evening, as a true born Canadian, and spoke of the great work he had done in acting as chairman of the committee which compiled the New Canadian Methodist Hymnal. He also assured the students that Dr. Rose's literary abilities qualified him to speak on Canadian literature.

Dr. Rose expressed his pleasure in the fact that this week was set apart as Canadian Authors' Week; and was glad to note that means were thus being taken to encourage Canadian authorships. Continuing his address on "The Contribution of Canadian Methodism to Canadian Literature," Dr. Rose said Methodism had been too busy to produce authors. She had had her cause to build and maintain, and to this she had given her time. The time for producing authors lies ahead of her. Nevertheless Methodism has been the pathfinder. Notwithstanding the primitive state of the country, in 1829 the first issue of the Christian Guardian was published, and the then Editor was an author.

Drs. Withrow, Carroll, Blewitt and Workman were also mentioned by Dr. Rose as Canadian Methodist authors. Speaking of Dr. Ryerson, the first principal of Victoria College, and whose name fills a worthy place on the list of early Canadian authors, Dr. Rose said it is to be regretted that our leading Principals and professors have not turned to literary effort.

Among the laymen of the Methodist Church who are recognized authors, Dr. Rose mentioned the Brothers Carroll, Messrs. Allison, Armstrong, Phelps and Thomas. While (Continued on Page 4.)

ANOTHER STEP FORWARD.

The success of the inter-faculty boxing contests is the most promising thing that has been seen in athletics at McGill for many years. Last year some of the bouts in the college meet had to go to men without any competition, while this season a long series of eliminations are necessary in every class before the men from the different faculties will be able to meet to decide the championships.

As long as faculty sport thrives the 'Varsity teams at the college will not lack for material. More men can be trained through the medium of the inter-school competitions than would be the case in many seasons of concentration on a small number of men who think themselves good enough to try out for the teams representative of the university.

The coaching of men with a view to having them become proficient in sport and play on the 'Varsity teams is not the main objective in view in encouraging inter-faculty competition, however. An earnest endeavour is being made to make the college men as ardent competitors in athletics as they have been supporters of the teams from the outside.

If the students are to show as keen an interest in strictly college interest in the future as they are doing at the present time, there will be no need for compulsory gymnasium classes. The Physical Education Department is no more anxious to have the men attend gymnasium than the men are themselves willing to attend them. They do insist, however, that every man should take some form of activity that will give him enough exercise to keep him in good physical condition.

Competition in the various branches of sport followed at McGill provides both exercise and interest for the men, and the requirements of the Physical Education authorities are met at the same time as the students are thoroughly enjoying themselves. It may well be said that almost every man attending the university is indulging in some form of athletic activity. We can be more proud of this fact than we would be of a team that carried off the championship, although only a few students took part in the games. We have taken another step forward.

NO FINALS.

The action of the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania in abolishing final examinations has called for no inconsiderable amount of comment among those interested in the forward steps of education.

"Cramming" to pass a final examination has never been held by educators to be the most desirable mode of acquiring knowledge, and, in spite of the fact that the semester examination has always been held over the head of undergraduates, the effort has been made to drive home knowledge from day to day. The final examination has been a sort of test of the attention paid by the student. Against the cramming evil no effective step has been taken. It is still sometimes possible for a man to pass a course after one hectic night of study during which he gorges himself with facts, his theory being that if he enters the examination oozing the scattered facts, he may be able to hit upon enough material to slip by with the minimum mark.

Not because they care especially for the system of A-B-C-D-E marking or for final examinations have educators clung to that system, but they have utilized it as the best available means of tying up the loose ends of the academic course. They admit that the ideal system would embrace an orderly process of learning from day to day, with an occasional review to consolidate ground gained. The Wharton School faculty apparently believes that its monthly examinations in each subject will take care of the review factor, and that the elimination of final examinations will cut off those last two weeks in a term, when speculation about the probable contents of the examination paper leaves many men so distraught that their acquisitive efficiency is seriously impaired.

No one would be hardy enough to make a snap judgment prediction on the Wharton idea. With a business school where those enrolled are supposed to have come to a realization of the task in hand, there is every possibility that success will result. Its efficacy among a younger group of the lower classes would be, we think, open to question. While it is the ideal to be striven for, the no-examination project is still in the future.—The Dartmouth.

JOURNALISM NOW ON PROFESSIONAL BASIS

"With the development of schools of journalism, training for newspaper work is passing out of the apprenticeship method of the trades into the college method of the other professions like law, medicine, and engineering," said Professor Wallard G. Bleyer, director of journalism at the University of Wisconsin and president of the American association of Teachers of Journalism, in addressing the students of the Medill School of Journalism at Chicago.

"Just as with the development of professional training for law and medicine, the state has set up higher and higher standards for the practice of these professions, so it is not unlikely that, because of the importance of newspapers in shaping public opinion, definite requirements will be established for admission to the profession of journalism," he continued.

"The success of our democratic form of government depends on sound public opinion, which is the composite of individual private opinions largely if not entirely on the basis of the news that they read in the newspapers.

"It is even more important to the state that the newspaper men and women who gather, write and edit the news be well informed and well trained for their work, than that lawyers and doctors be qualified to practice their professions.

"The profession of journalism suffers today from the lack of a strong national organization of newspaper writers and editors, comparable to the American Bar association and the American Medical association.

"Such an organization with state and local branches, like the state and county bar and medical societies, could be of great service in establishing standards for the profession of journalism, similar to the codes of ethics of the medical and legal professions."

COURSE AROUSES GREAT INTEREST

Dept. of Religious Education Offers Short Course.

Considerable interest is being shown in the short course which the Department of Religious Education of the Affiliated Theological Colleges is starting this week.

The Department of Religious Education was founded last year under Prof. Y. W. C. A., Secretaries, etc. Prompted subject to all theological students. In co-operation with the University, the Department also gives a four-year course for the training of Directors of Religious Education, Y. M. C. A., and Y. M. C. A., Secretaries, etc. Prompted by the great need of trained teachers in the field of Religious Education, the Department is this year providing a short course to be given through the remainder of the academic year for the training of voluntary leadership.

In the treatment of its material the Department uses modern scientific methods. Its point of view is an evidence of the breaking down of the imaginary barrier which has long stood between science and religion. Recognizing the great fact of the evolutionary process, the longer course gives a background of the biological and social sciences necessary in the modern treatment of education.

The short course should have a direct appeal to university students who are at all interested in Sunday School and kindred work. The courses in History, Administration and Materials of Religious Education, also those in Child Psychology and the 'Teen Age.

Programme will be given in the evenings and on Saturdays. Any or all of the courses are free. Under such experienced leaders as Rev. Principal Rexford, Prof. Best and other experts whose methods are modern, the course should prove not only helpful but interesting to those who take it up. Information can be obtained from Prof. Best, 740 University St., or from any of the Theological Colleges.

continued intermittently for many years until the coming of the friar missionaries in the middle ages, and it was finally deemed advisable to bury the monument, containing a confession of faith of the sectarians of the Pill of Immortality as they called themselves lest worse harm should overtake them. This was consequently carried out, and the monument was only unearthed by some workmen of the temple about the year 1620.

After the general address on the history of this branch of the Syrian Church in the Middle Kingdom Mr. Lockhead read some interesting extracts of a translation of the beautifully executed ideographs on the monument itself. The text consists for the most part of a general confession of theistic belief, an account of the Creation and the Fall of Man and a fervid expression of belief in the saving powers of the Trinity, intermingled with a number of evidences of extraneous doctrines grafted on as a result of unavoidable contact with Buddhism and Dowhism.

During the extermination of the usual refreshments several of the members entered into discussion with the speaker on various points in connection with the paper. The Honorary President, Dr. Fryer and Prof. Basil Williams were present, and on the motion of the Honorary President, Mr. Lockhead, in consideration of his connection with the club in the years of its infancy, was unanimously elected as an honorary member.

The next regular meeting of the Historical Club will be held on Wednesday, the 30th, when G. C. Wadsworth and Whitmore will read papers.

PEPPYS AT MCGILL

Wakened out of my sleep this morning by a great battering upon my door, which proved to be little Anne Mary, daughter to my landlady, who had marked with great intelligence the passing of the hours, and would not have it that I should be late for my discourse at nine of the clock. So thanked her with some indulgence, and made speed to dress and so off to the colleges; but yet not in time, and the don who stood upon the rostrum fixed me with a cold and fish-like eye, and I quailing thereunder and like to burn up for shame. Whereupon he asked me why I did not buy myself what he named an alurum-cloche and I replied meekly that I would. But Lord, what a great expense I am constantly put to. When it is not the buying of a vast number of very dear volumes for use in my studies, it is paying out most fabulous amounts for the feeding of those ungrateful fellows, the sophomores, or I know not what; so that my life here for these weeks past has been naught but a constant paying out, with no hope of return, and truly the life of a student at these colleges is an arduous one enough, and now I am ordered by the dons to buy me an alurum-cloche. To the playhouse called the Princesse with certain of my friends, and after a perilous voyage on a kind of mechanical stairway up again to a seat near to the rafters. A medley of all sorts of things we saw; among them two wenches dancing, which I liked very well, they being comely, and so to the drinking of a little ale, and then to bed.

11. Thereupon there arose a great clamour, some shouting one thing and some another.

12. Then the judge stood up and a great calm prevailed, and he spake unto Zaccius, "Get thee hence Zaccius and

7. Now when Zaccius was brought before the court of the students he was in no wise downcast and did again boastfully proclaim unto the assembled multitude of the students that he, Zaccius, came unto McGill not to take, but to give learning.

8. Then the chief councillors of the students tore their hair and rent their clothes in twain, crying one unto another, "This man blasphemeth the sacred name of McGill, wherefore shall he suffer divers torments and humiliations at the hands of the students. Proceed with the sentence O noble judge."

9. But there arose a man of wisdom and understanding and silencing the seething throng, which was ready to stone Zaccius addressed them in this wise,

10. "O noble friends, O noble judge peace and greetings be unto thee. As we have heard with our ears the vain boasts of Zaccius let us not be too hasty. Let us consider the case very diligently, and wisely. Whereof I advise thee, O noble judge, cast not a sentence upon this young man but suffer him to depart from hence uninjured, for it is written that the wise shall be taken in their own understanding, and the crafty in their own guile; and this Zaccius will be taken in his own learning and craft, and greater far will be his downfall than if we should chastise him."

11. Thereupon there arose a great clamour, some shouting one thing and some another.

12. Then the judge stood up and a great calm prevailed, and he spake unto Zaccius, "Get thee hence Zaccius and

LIFE'S LITTLE TRAGEDIES.

I. Mary

Against parental advice, Mary left Butter Corners and plunged into the swirling vortex of New York; and the movies. She had a premonition, but the lure was one too many.

Stardom proved elusive; the managers were sorry, but—it was a rush season, particularly for ingenues. The pavements knew Mary; she had discovered rouge and the all-night restaurants. Gone were fame, success; gone, too, pride and youth.

Came a telegram: "FATHER DYING TOO LATE TO COME HOME. WIRE LAST MESSAGE." It struck home; father must know, but he made to think all goes well. Then the inspiration.

The last words wired, she looks down from the fourteenth story. Ant-like human crawl below, teeming microscopic life. The whole city lies before her, a ragged panorama breathing smoke, echoing faintly at that dizzy height the concatenation of its life breath.... The papers later called it one of the most sensational suicides of the year, right through the top of Mrs. Castor's limousine.

And father? Died with a serene, contented smile; happy in the knowledge that his daughter had made good. The telegram clutched in his hand read: "HAVE ALL NEW YORK AT MY FEET". —Oz.

"Sleeping out doors makes one beautiful," says a beauty hinter. Oh, see the pretty Policeman!

blaspheme no more against McGill for as surely as thou standest here thou shalt suffer for thy blasphemy and thy folly.

MCGILL WINS FAST WATER POLO GAME

Intermediates Turn Tables on Maisonneuve.

SCORE 2-1.

McGill Now Tied with Maisonneuve for League.

By a score of 2-1, McGill Intermediates beat Maisonneuve in a fast water polo game last night, in the Central Y. tank. Munro and Ross played good polo for McGill, while Mien led the Maisonneuve attack. The game was hotly contested throughout, every man on both teams playing to the utmost of his ability. McGill was hoping to reverse the previous defeat, and tie with Maisonneuve for the League leadership, while the latter was trying desperately to retain the lead.

The game opened with McGill defending the shallow end. Maisonneuve started off with a rush, and attacked consistently. Maisonneuve showed more combined play, and kept the Red and White largely on the defensive for the first part of the game.

The teams changed ends, McGill taking over the deep end. Maisonneuve continued their attack, and showed up well. Mien shot cleverly, and scored the first point, though Brown made a good try at a stop. McGill came back strong, but seemed unable to score. Munro and Vickerson threatened frequently from close up, but Aird put up a great game, and was close to impassable. Maisonneuve was checking hard, and giving little opportunity for shooting, though McGill tried repeatedly. McGill passes were frequently being intercepted, while Maisonneuve was Gill tried repeatedly. McGill passes keeping better control of the ball.

Half time score 1-0 for Maisonneuve.

The second half opened with McGill in the shallow end again. The whole style of play was changed, and McGill put forward an ambitious offensive in which the whole team played a part. Ross shot hard, but Aird stopped prettily. A minute later Ross secured possession again and scored McGill's first point on a hard shot from close range. Score 1-1.

Maisonneuve was trying long shots, being unable to get close in. The checking was extremely hard, both teams making a great effort to score the deciding point. Vickerson brought the ball well up to the goal, but was checked hard, so passed back. Munro received and put in a beautiful long shot which beat the goalkeeper completely. Score 2-1 for McGill.

Maisonneuve tried to retaliate, but McGill continued strong team play, and kept a slight lead. Teams changed ends, McGill going to the deep end. Vickerson came close in, but was checked hard. Play saw-sawed back and forth, every man playing hard. Maisonneuve attacked dangerously, but Anson and Forsyth checked efficiently. Munro also showed up excellently in checking attacks. At one time ten men were grouped around the McGill goal, keeping Browne busy. Mousette shot several times from a distance, but Browne stopped well. Naismith played an excellent game. Maisonneuve was attacking strongly when the whistle blew for time.

A large crowd of Maisonneuve rooters kept up a continual din against which the few McGill representatives could do little.

Line-up: Maisonneuve. McGill. Goal. Amaron, Laishley and Solomon also showed up well. Among the new candidates for the Senior team were, Turpell, of last year's Intermediates; Menzies, Hilton, of last year's Intermediates; Powell, of last year's Juniors, and Brown, Boyd, Mendelsohn, Kemp and Quackenbush. Burke, who was on the team two years ago, and who played for the Highlanders last year, was out along with Manson, who has made a name for himself as a defence man in British Columbia.

MCGILL WRESTLERS ARE IN CONDITION

Class is Showing Promising Talent of Late.

Coach Smith put his proteges through a strenuous hour and a half's work in the Union yesterday. Due to pressure of circumstances in the form of preparation for the Junior Prom., the wrestlers were compelled to hold their practice in the basement of the Union, but this proved no handicap for the men, who went to it with a will, and judging by their present shape, should soon be in mid-season form.

The next work-out will take place on Saturday afternoon, in the Union, when the men will try out some new holds and throws.

BASKETBALL DRILL HELD LAST NIGHT

Senior Practice Was at Molson's Hall.

GOOD TURN-OUT.

Some Twenty New-comers to Senior Ranks This Year.

About twenty candidates for the Senior basketball team turned out yesterday at Molson's Hall to answer the call of George Fox, the new basketball coach. The coach was introduced to the men by Dr. Lamb, who urged the men to give the new coach their heartiest co-operation in order to obtain good results.

The coach put the men through a strenuous hour's practice. The majority were not in the best condition, and felt the strain noticeably. Fox had the candidates passing and dribbling the ball for fifteen minutes. Then he had the defence men breaking up the attacks of the forwards. Following this he instructed the men in taking free shots. The medicine ball also came into its share of usage. Quite a number of last year's team were out. Cecil Hay, of the track team, showed his usual good style in defence and shooting. "Bones" Little, the flying wing of the Rugby team, displayed the same excellent form he showed on the gridiron.

Amaron, Laishley and Solomon also showed up well.

Among the new candidates for the Senior team were, Turpell, of last year's Intermediates; Menzies, Hilton, of last year's Intermediates; Powell, of last year's Juniors, and Brown, Boyd, Mendelsohn, Kemp and Quackenbush. Burke, who was on the team two years ago, and who played for the Highlanders last year, was out along with Manson, who has made a name for himself as a defence man in British Columbia.

From the appearance of the squad there seems to be a wealth of basketball material at McGill. Under such a competent coach as Fox, McGill has a splendid chance to tuck away the Intercollegiate Basketball championship.

The next practice will be held on Saturday, at the Highlanders' Armoury, from 4.30 to 6.30. All candidates for the Senior basketball team are requested to be on time.

CLASS BASKETBALL IS WELL UNDER WAY

The basketball fixture in the Inter-class league between Arts '22 and Medicine '25, failed to materialize, owing to the non-appearance of the necessary quota of players from the Senior Year in Arts. Owing to this circumstance Med. '25 won the game by default, and boosted their average to that extent.

The inauguration of the Inter-class Basketball League has met with strong approval, and the efforts of those managing the league have met with hearty encouragement by the response they have received from the

PLANS FOR HOCKEY NOW UNDER WAY

Candidates to Register Before Monday.

USE CAMPUS RINK.

Practices Arranged to Suit Convenience of Players.

Candidates for the hockey teams this year should register at the porter's desk in the Union before Monday, according to an announcement made by Frank Shaughnessy last night. When giving in their names the men should state what hours would be most convenient for them to turn out and practice. The workouts will take place on the campus rink until the ice is ready at the Arena.

According to the plan outlined by the coach there will be a series of continuous workouts held during the day at which the men will be tried out. From the list of hours left with the porter the practices will be arranged and teams will be chosen to meet on the rink. This system will eliminate any waiting on the part of men who are trying to turn out for the hockey teams and every man who registers will be sure that he will be given a good chance to show his wares to the hockey coach.

In former years, when the practices were held with all of the candidates turning out at the same time, many of the students were only able to get on the ice for a few minutes and the hockey mentor had very little chance to see what they were capable of doing. This state of affairs will be done away with under the new system.

The preliminary practices will be in the form of games between teams chosen at random by the coach but the men will not be worked hard until they get into condition. Close scrutiny of every player over an extended period of time should give Shaughnessy an idea of their styles of play that will serve him well later in the season.

From the men who turn out at the evening practices, the senior, intermediate, and junior teams will be picked. The men who are lucky enough to find a place with the squads chosen to work regularly for the teams representative of McGill will be taken to the Arena after the Christmas holidays and the regular practices will be carried on in that place.

Indications are that there will be some very good men turning out for the teams but it is essential that every undergraduate who has any hockey ability should turn out. With hours arranged to suit the convenience of the individual students, no man has any excuse for failing to try for a place with one of the squads.

undergraduates. Twenty classes out of a possible of twenty-three have entered the competitions, which is entirely a record display of genuine enthusiasm.

BOXERS OPEN SEASON WITH GREAT BOUTS

Elimination in Faculty Tournament Begun.

LARGE TURN-OUT.

Walter Molson Offers Medals—Prospects Bright for Championship.

The 1921-22 Boxing Season got away to an auspicious start last night when eliminations in Science, for the inter-faculty tournament, commenced at Molson Hall. True to B. W. & F. traditions the first bout was staged on the dot at 8 o'clock, and for two hours, the representative gathering of boxing enthusiasts was treated to a number of thrills in the various keenly contested bouts.

The inter-faculty boxing tournament in the first ever to be staged at McGill. Those in charge of the sport have adopted this plan as a means of improving the boxing situation here. For two successive years the Red and White teams have gone down to defeat at the Intercollegiate, and a great effort is being made to turn the tide. The failure of the B. W. & F. during the last two years may, in a great measure, be attributed to the small turnout and consequently the lack of competition in the various divisions. Under the present system, practically everyone in the University who is possessed of any boxing ability will come under the observation of the coaches, and in this way, it is likely that many intercollegiate contenders will be developed.

The success of the scheme is largely due to the efforts of Brewer, last year's Intercollegiate 145 pound champion, who has devoted a great deal of his time to the organization and arrangement of the inter-faculty tournament. Up until the present there are already seventy-five entries with a probability of the number being increased considerably by tonight.

As a further inducement to the men entered in the tournament, eight bronze medals have been offered by Mr. Walter Molson, to the champions in the various weights. Mr. Molson is the brother of the late Percival Molson, to whose memory the Stadium is dedicated. He is a member of the committee on Physical Education and has always taken a keen interest in all undergraduate activities. He has done a great deal towards furthering the interests of athletics at his Alma Mater at all times.

The first round of eliminations in Commerce and Arts will take place on Saturday at 2 P.M., when a number of excellent bouts will be staged. These will include one in the 158 pound class between Abinovitch the promising freshman who boxed three fast rounds with Brewer at the Union smoker on Friday, and Wilson, another speedy lad.

Medicine will hold its eliminations on Wednesday and the second round in Science will be staged on Tuesday and Thursday. All entrants are notified to hold themselves in readiness for they may be called upon to box at short notice.

The bouts last night were refereed by Robinson, the new boxing instructor. Professors Brown and Sullivan of the staff were also in attendance, showing their usual interest in the contestants.

In the 118 pound class Wilson was awarded the decision over Kirschberg after three fast rounds. The victor had an excellent defense which Kirschberg was unable to penetrate. In this bout, there was displayed perhaps the best hit of boxing of the evening.

Graham defeated Sainmet in the 125 pound division. The latter, though willing was not able to get through Graham's long reach and the latter won by a big margin.

Several good fights took place in the 135 class. Merritt outfought Manson in a very fast bout. Lane disposed of Donahue in the first round, the former being credited with a technical knockout. Lane was very shifty and in the few minutes which the bout lasted, Donahue was unable to land. In the third match of this division, Muir succumbed to Worsley's powerful attack, the contest being stopped in the second round. The 145 pound class furnished two thrilling matches. In the Shatford-Champion fray the fight was so keenly contested that an extra round was put on to decide the winner. Champion was given the decision by the very narrowest margin after one of the best bouts of the evening. In the other match, Warren who was overweight in the 135 pound class was compelled to move up a division and although he gave away over five pounds to Chisholm, came out the winner in a very bloody battle. The bout was nip and tuck from gong to gong and the spectators applauded the gameness of the contestants throughout.

There were two bouts in the 158 pound class. Binns defeated Buchanan. These men did not appear to be in good condition and the fight was consequently slow during the second and third rounds. Mitchell and Cooke engaged in a great battle. The men were game to the core and when the final gong sounded both were almost at the point of exhaustion. Cooke was awarded the decision by a shade.

There was once a hen who thought big thoughts And ambition completely filled her. She laid three eggs in one whole day. But the over egg-sertion killed her.

Yale and Harvard have added another sport, basket ball, to the list of games in which they wage an annual struggle. The Eli athletic authorities have scheduled two games with the Crimson, the first at New Haven on Tuesday, Feb. 7, and the second at Cambridge on Saturday, March 11. The Yale freshmen will also play in the Harvard year-teams at New Haven on March 11. This year will be the first in many seasons in which Yale and Harvard have met at basketball. The Crimson revived the sport only last Fall, after a long lapse, and, although not yet admitted to the intercollegiate league, is rapidly developing a strong quintet.

BASKETBALL UNDER WAY AT THE R.V.C.

Seniors Defeat Juniors - Fresh Lose to Sophs.

FAST PLAY.

Brilliant Display of Basketball by Veterans

The R. V. C. Inter-Class Basketball League got under way yesterday afternoon when four games were staged at Molson Hall; the Seniors met and were outclassed by the Juniors, while the lowly Freshies were forced to bow to the Soph sextett.

The Junior team composed almost entirely of veterans displayed a sterling brand of basketball, their shooting was accurate and their defense was particularly impenetrable. With performers such as M. Leggett and Z. Slack prospects of a strong team to represent R. V. C. this winter loom up very bright.

The first game was played between the first teams of the Junior and Senior years. Miss Cartwright refereed the first and second games, and Miss Porritt the third and fourth. The combination of both teams was very good, and each played a very hard game. The shooting of the Third Year was throughout the game quite brilliant; M. Leggett and Z. Slack both putting in some very good shots from the field. On the whole the ball was kept down to the Seniors' goal a good part of the time, the final score was Juniors 54, Seniors 4. The line up was as follows:

Forward. Seniors.
M. Leggett T. Rough
Z. Slack G. Hibbard
Centre.
D. Russel M. Fry
M. Pick H. MacIntosh
Guard.
E. Slackman J. Henderson
C. Fraser V. Foley

The play in the second game, which was between the first teams of the First and Second Years, proved much more even than that of the first game. During the first half the Second Year had the best of the play, when E. Russel did most of the shooting, and played a very good game. There was a considerable amount of fouling, and several times double fouls occurred. A continuous batting of the ball was an outstanding feature of the game. In the second half the First Year played better and brought the score well up on that of the Second Year.

The line-up was as follows:

Second Year. First Year.
Centre.
M. Pennington G. Oliver
E. Basken R. Bercovitich
Guard.
M. Cameron M. Lough
C. Robertson M. McWatters
Forward.
E. Russel E. Dunton
P. Murray T. Somerset

The third game in the league was played between the Junior second team, and the Senior second team. The play was fairly even at first, with very little fouling. However, the Juniors soon began to pull away. A. Roy, jumping centre for the Juniors, played a very fast, clean game, and seemed to merit a position on the 1st Junior team. M. Howell pulled up the score for the Seniors by putting in 3 shots in the last half. The final score was 10-6 for the Juniors.

Line-up:—
Junior II. Senior II.
Centre.
A. Roy K. Godwin
M. Beattie L. Weibel
Guard.
L. Shirriff Percival
C. Freyvogel D. Macrae
Forward.
D. Teed M. Howell
J. Wighton F. Brown

The game between the Freshies A. and Sophomore II. team was the last to be played. The Freshies had very good combination, and the forwards, L. Chalk, and Turley were very accurate. The Sophomore team showed a lack of practice, and were outplayed by the Freshies from beginning to end. M. McLelland played a good game for the Sophs.

Line-up:—
Sophomore II. Freshie A.
Centre.
M. McLelland E. Baker
E. Watt M. Walsh
Guard.
A. Jackson E. Charlton
D. Sangster E. McNaughton
Forward.
C. Haight L. Chalk
N. Pidgeon R. Turley

OTHER CAMPUSES

Yale University is planning to spend $300,000 for improving its track facilities. The plans include a new track on the site of the old freshman football field, the erection of cement stands to seat thousands of spectators, and a house containing 2,400 lockers. The new track, 24 feet wide, is to include a 220-yard straightaway, with 30 yards at either end for starting and stopping. A row of trees will be planted along the east side and also the south end of the track to break the force of the wind.

Early in May the School of Hygiene at Johns Hopkins University will send out an expedition of scientists to study the Eskimos. The Eskimos are considered to be the healthiest people in the world. The members of the expedition, therefore, hope that they may discover some new theory of health as put into into practice by these northern dwellers. The expedition will be devoted solely to scientific research. The members plan to penetrate parts of the Eskimo region hitherto unvisited by white people.

Rutgers College is facing a peculiarly interesting problem this season in connection with its football team. The Athletic Association finds that it is hardly able to handle the large crowds which gather to see the games. At the beginning of the season they installed 300 seats on the east side of their football field. When the crowds began to collect for the opening contest they realized that they would need many more, so they immediately ordered the installation of 1,400 additional seats. This brings the total seating capacity of their field up to 6,000.

Calvin Coolidge, Vice-President of the United States, addressed the citizens of Cambridge recently from the steps of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the city.

The institute has inaugurated a new course in public utility which will be given in cooperation with the General Electric Company and the Edison Illuminating Company. The course will deal with the efficient handling of the lighting, water, gas and local transportation problems. The men, in this way, will be taught to apply their science to problems of public utility.

Princeton's soccer team captured the intercollegiate championship by scoring a clean-cut 5 to 1 victory over Penn. in the last game of the season. The Tigers had already beaten every other team in the league. The players will receive a straight varsity letter, according to a rule passed last year giving the "P" to a championship minor sport teams.

The School of Business, of Columbia University acting thru its Honor System Committee has drawn up a questionnaire which shall be issued to the men of the school on Thursday and Friday of this week. The purpose of the ballot is to sound the sentiment of the men of the School of Business regarding the Honor System and to base a draft of plan upon the sentiment expressed.

The Student Council Debating Team of the City College of New York is in communication with Dartmouth, Union College, North Carolina University, Syracuse, Columbia and N. Y. U. The schedule for the year is being arranged and will include some of the leading universities of the East. The Debating Team is chosen before each debate C. C. N. COLUMBIA STUDENT ON HIKE TO CALIFORNIA

Love for the open air and natural scenery prompted H. R. Harris '21 to make his third transcontinental hike recently. Harris walked and "hitched" the entire distance from New York to San Francisco and completed the journey in exactly twenty-five days. When he reached California he entered the University of California to take his master's degree in English.

On the trip Harris wore army clothes and carried in his knapsack only such articles as could not be dispensed with: a change of clothing, a blanket, a canteen, and writing paper. When necessary he carried food.

He slept in numerous and diverse places. "On trips like these," he said when interviewed, "it is impossible to know where night will overtake you. Usually, I have been able to reach a hotel, farmhouse, or ranch where accommodations were generously and cheerfully given me. On other occasions, however, I have been obliged to prepare evening quarters in surroundings not so comfortable. I recall especially a night spent with a one-legged tramp in a dry canyon, another in a wagon-shed at a sheep camp, and another in a deserted village in a timber belt."

Harris graduated from Columbia last June with his bachelor of arts degree and has the greatest respect for the New York College. "I am glad to be in California," he said, "and sad to be away from Columbia. It is true, the University of California has a big grip on my affections but how my pride swells when I tell the Californians that my Alma Mater is Columbia! After all, there is but one college such as Columbia and, in the last analysis, my heart always goes back to her."

SMOKER IS FIRST EVENT OF NEW CLUB

Attractive Plans Made for Coming Year.

MANY MEMBERS.

Several Interesting Features on Monday Night's Programme.

The Ontario Club is wasting no time in starting its social programme. A smoker will be the initial event of this progressive club and is scheduled for Monday night in the Union at 8.00 o'clock. An unusually attractive programme is being prepared and smokes and refreshments are being ordered for over a hundred men. Special features in the way of entertainment are being procured which should draw a large crowd.

At the meeting of the executive on Tuesday a constitution was drawn up and will be published in Daily. Plans and arrangements for the coming season were also discussed.

All Ontario students are invited to attend the smoker on Monday whether they have joined the club or not and meet men from their own province. This club will overcome a long-felt want for all Ontario students especially freshmen. Before the organization of this club, an Ontario freshman had practically no social club for which he was eligible.

The executive of the club are arranging a number of entertaining events. Smokers, snow-shoe tramps, dances and other gatherings are being arranged. These social evenings will be held at least monthly for the remainder of the session and are expected to draw a large enthusiastic number of Ontario men.

The faculty representatives are hard at work enrolling members. The fee has been set at $2.00 per annum which is practically the same as the other sectional clubs. The following men are acting as faculty representatives.

Department of Commerce—G. F. Jones.

Faculty of Dentistry—A. J. McMillan.
Faculty of Law—"Dink" Carroll.
Faculty of Medicine—A. S. Hill.
Faculty of Science—W. A. Davis.

A representative from the theological colleges has yet to be elected.

Brewer, the president of the club is well known around the college and this club is very fortunate at having him at the head of their line organization and it will be no fault of his if there are not over a hundred members or would-be-members at the Union on Monday night.

DENT. SOPHS. AGAIN VICTORIOUS

In an indoor baseball game played last evening at the High School Gym., the Dental Sophomores emerged victorious, defeating the first year men by the score of 11-4. The game was not as one-sided as the score might indicate.

For Dent, '24 Duggan and Higgins, were the mainstay at the bat, while for the Freshmen Gernitsky, Orr and Klein furnished most of the hits.

DR. ROSE SPOKE TO WESLEYANS.

there is nothing in our contribution to make us vain, said Dr. Rose, yet there is no reason why we should hang our heads. He (the speaker), assured his audience there is much material to be had with regard to the history of Canada and Canadian Methodism, and expressed the wish that out of Wesleyan there would come some who would do the necessary research work in this connection and present it to their country, for the great need of to-day is true historians. In conclusion Dr. Rose mentioned Mrs. Nellie McClung as Methodism's latest contribution.

RECEIVE THE MASTER TOUCH OF A NEW AND GREATER DESIGNER

INDEED we believe our new designer the most artistic creator of fur fashions in all Canada. To those who have yearly witnessed our display of fur fashions the statement that we have improved on the artistry of our creations may seem quite impossible, yet we can promise early visitors a revelation in a wealth of the most exquisite models ever assembled whose individuality and exclusiveness will pass unchallenged.

McGill Men!

In telling the merchants of the city when you make purchases from them, that you are from McGill, and that you are out to give "McGill Daily" advertisers first chance, you are doing nothing more than giving a square deal to two people---the Daily and the Advertiser.

And you owe it to them!!!
